Construction Starts on Turtle Mountain

Vernon, British Columbia - Construction began today on the community access road to Vernon's newest residential community - Turtle Mountain.

Wesbild Holdings Ltd., one of Canada's largest neighbourhood developers, will be working closely with their contractors, Hoban Equipment Ltd and consulting engineers Kerr Wood Leidal, to oversee this first phase of infrastructure construction - a major arterial road extension of 39th Avenue as required by the City of Vernon. Phase I will see the grading of the road sub-base completed. This extension, tentatively titled Turtle Mountain Drive, is main arterial road for the Turtle Mountain community.

"Wherever we go our number one priority is to be a good neighbour.", said Don Moore, Manager of Environmental Services for Wesbild, "That starts with providing our neighbours and all of Vernon the most up to date information about this development and trying to keep any disruptions from construction of our community to a minimum."

Phase I of construction is scheduled to finish at the end of October.

About WESBILD

Wesbild Holdings Ltd. is a company that understands the importance of neighbourhoods and livable communities. Wesbild is a real estate development company that has been working in British Columbia for over 25 years. Wesbild's focus is on building communities through land development, shopping centers, golf courses and rental housing. Best known for developing the master planned community of Westwood Plateau in the City of Coquitlam, home to some 15,000 residents, the development is one of the most desirable suburban locations in Greater Vancouver. Westwood Plateau is internationally renowned for the forward thinking nature of the master plan and the innovative techniques that were used to minimize environmental impacts both during and after construction. Most recently, Wesbild is planning for another Coquitlam community - Burke Mountain - a sustainable, complete, hill-side community for 25,000 people.
